At midnight, Alek trudged down to the old, dilapidated barn. The moon was like a white coin in the night and the bright stars freckled the darkness. It was icy cold. Thundering across the fields came the white horse. "What is your wish?" it called to Alek. At that moment, Alek had an idea. At first it was just a seed of an idea but soon the seed took root. Standing still, beneath the grinning moon and the speckled stars, he called out. "I wish for my father to see our baby in a cradle made of gold!"

"Good wish," whinnied the horse, galloping away.
